

Scott Gets Support For Governorship

STATE SEN. William Z. Scott said yesterday he has been encouraged by rank-and-file Republicans to seek the GOP gubernatorial nomination next year.

Scott said he sounded out party faithful concerning the governorship at Monday night's state GOP fund-raising buffet which honored former President Dwight D. Eisenhower and his vice president, Richard M. Nixon.

"I told them I was interested in the possibility of seeking the nomination and I got a lot of encouragement," Scott said in an interview.

Sen. Scott represents Monroe, Carbon, Wayne, Pike Counties in the State Senate.

The Lansford lawyer, who will be 45 next Tuesday, was asked if any of the encouragement came from party leaders. He replied:

Rank-and-File

"No, but it came from a good many rank-and-file workers from various sections of the state. There were no commitments given but their reaction was encouraging to me."

Scott's name has been heard frequently, along with a number of others, in speculation concerning possible GOP candidates for governor. He also has been mentioned as a possible candidate for lieutenant governor.

Until now, Scott has been saying he is not actively seeking the nomination.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Pennsylvania Supreme Court Tuesday reaffirmed that hospitals and charitable institutions are immune from lawsuits.

Thus the court, in a 4-3 decision, again upheld a principle which has been law in Pennsylvania since 1888.

The decision was handed down in two cases involving Hahnemann Hospital and St. Agnes Hospital, both in Philadelphia. The court had been studying the problem for nearly two years.

At issue is whether hospitals should pay for the mistakes of their doctors, interns and nurses.

The St. Agnes suit was brought by the estate of William Julian, a 26-year-old construction worker who died Feb. 28, 1959, after cutting a finger on rusty metal. The suit charged anti-tetanus shots given the patient eight days too late.

The suit against Hahnemann was brought by Kenneth Michael, who alleged negligence during an operation by one of two surgeons.

Neither suit ever came to trial in the lower courts because the immunity defense was raised by the hospitals.

Chief Justice Charles Alvin Jones wrote the majority opinion.

Uniting Congo

Times seem to be changing for the better in the Congo, as witness the agreement between President Kasavubu and his rival, Antoine Gizenga, to reconvene the long-suspended Congolese Parliament under United Nations protection.

Such an accord required a high degree of compromise for parliament will be taking up a draft constitution for a unified Congo under a strong central government.

Conceivably it will also have to decide who should be boss — Mr. Kasavubu, who is supported by the West, or the Soviet-back Mr. Gizenga, who calls himself political heir to Patrice Lumumba.

Peru Pays Its Own Way

Peru's proud capital, Lima, the City of Kings, has one of the worst housing problems in South America. Countless persons driven from the back country by drought, unemployment and crushing poverty, have emigrated to the city where they squat in appalling "barriadas" almost totally lacking human services, and stolidly await deliverance.

The government has been striving for a solution, recognizing the threat that lies in such a concentration of misery. At last a comprehensive campaign has been mounted, a striking example of diversified international cooperation. Peru is using its own funds — 15 million dollars from a budget surplus in 1960 — to go with 53 millions loaned by the United States Export-Import Bank for a widespread development program.

Peru is not waiting for someone to undertake its salvation. It is seeking its own realistically, using its own resources, governmental loans and private foreign investment, and asking the people to contribute, too, in money and labor.

This is the way to build pride in achievement. Peru may well be doing a great service not only to itself and its people but by example to all its underdeveloped neighbors in the hemisphere

George Sokolsky Says . . .

Justification Of Error

Prof. Henry Steele Commagin is an historian who has supported the New Deal and who believes:

"So often we forget how close the Nazis and the Fascists and the war lords of Japan — with all their inhumanity, life — came to victory."

"If Winston Churchill and Franklin D. Roosevelt had not formed their grand alliance; if Adolf Hitler had not committed the incredible folly of attacking Russia before he had disposed of Britain; if men of good will and of courage everywhere had not battled gallantly for freedom, there would be no point now in discussing advances."

The black clouds of tyranny and superstition would have settled alike over all the past glories and future hopes of mankind."

In 1961, this particular paragraph is startling because as a result of our inability to recognize in 1939 the peril of supporting Soviet Russia, we are in major difficulties for which there seems to be no imminent solution.

"Mankind then was given a new lease on life."

What kind of a new lease of life was the world given? Since 1945, the world has been disturbed by constant war, by revolution, by upset social and economic conditions everywhere. It is impossible to believe that World War II saved the world from disorder.

World War II destroyed a thousand years of history, but it opened a new era — the United States has been in the peril of war and has had to devote its budget to warlike preparations.

The new era is a continuation of war by all sorts of frightful devices.

From The Realm Of Stamps

By Ray Patton

The new 13-cent air mail stamp will be released today at New York, N.Y. Dedication cerememonies will be held at Idlewild International Airport under the sponsorship of a group of International airmail carriers.

This stamp will be necessary as of July 1, when the new International rates announced by the postmaster general go into effect. The 13-cent rate will cover half-ounce airmail letters to Bermuda, Central America other than Mexico (which is seven cents per ounce), the Caribbean area and St. Pierre and Miquelon.

With the addition of the 13-cent stamp and the new international airmail rate becoming effective July 1, there may be a necessary 13-cent airmail stamp from the United Nations in order to meet this new increase. However, no word has been received.

The Pennsylvania Story

Barely In Time

By Mason Denison

HARRISBURG — Informal "grave-side services" have now been held — but the coffin lid remains to be mailed down tightly!

We're referring to a daring-do bit of legislation carrying the sponsorship of highway and blessing (originally at least) of the current Lawrence Administration — that until this column in a series of three articles exposed the infamy of this legislative tid-bit, was sailing merrily through legislative channels full steam ahead.

The legislation in question is House Bill 1259, a gem of a bill if there ever was one — for plucking your rights right out from under you!

It is such a ridiculous piece of legislation (although not in land-reform and land-grabby Cuba) that we dubbed it the "highway land commissar bill" — an appellation that since then has stuck with the adroit piece of legislation.

For those unfamiliar with the term or who may have forgotten just what the bill spelled out, without going into the bulk of the thing as enumerated earlier in the series of three articles, this one sentence from the bill tells the story:

"The secretary (of highways) may acquire all property necessary for present or future highway purposes."

Sounds innocent enough — until you plow through the voluminous bill and discover that lo and behold the secretary of highways "could" just up and take away your little old home instead "for present or future highway purposes" and if he decides "oh fiddlesticks, we don't want it after all" — up and sell it not back to you but to whom ever he wishes!

That of course is only a minuscule part of the "highway land commissar bill" that almost made the grade!

Here's the story of what has happened to that piece of "nut" legislation:

The bill sailed through the House of Representatives May 12 by the handsome vote of 135-61 (106 votes are needed for passage of legislation in the lower chamber). From the "aye" votes it is obvious many a House member didn't take the time to thoroughly study the bill.

The bill then went over the Senate and on June 6 was reported from the Senate Highways Committee "as committed". That day the "highway land commissar bill" was given clearance on the first of three required readings.

Sailing as clear as in the House obviously was indicated. That week though — the week of June 6 — two things happened:

(1) — That week the series of three articles appeared statewide in this column exposing the bill;

(2) — That week an incensed State Grange, headed by State Grange Master J. Collins McSparran, aroused to the inherent inequities in the legislation particularly insofar as their farm members were concerned, demanded and got a public hearing on the bill. The Grange let loose with much of the material appearing in these columns.

At that point the "highway land commissar bill" stopped dead in its tracks. It lingered on the Senate calendar ready for its second reading — but the second reading never came.

Last week the bill was pulled off the Senate calendar and re-committed and re-committed usually means legislative death and burial. Somewhat ignorantly, it has been referred to a sub-committee of three senators for "further study."

It is to the everlasting credit of the Senate that it acted as it did. "Graveside services" now have been held for the vicious bill which never should have been reported out of committee in the House in the first place.

The Senate sub-committee which now has the bill "for further study" should nail down the coffin lid — tightly!

Members of the sub-committee: Sen. Hugh J. McMenamin, 700 PP&L Building, Scranton; Sen. George N. Wade, 2101 N. Front St., Harrisburg, and Sen. Peter J. Camiel, 151 Brown St., Philadelphia, 23.

Jake LaMotta was given a savage beating by Bobby Murphy. The fight was stopped in the seventh round by the ring doctor.

20 Years Ago

There were only three living veterans of the Civil War left in the state of Pennsylvania. All were 95 years of age or older.

Eugene Kaul of East Stroudsburg, was seriously injured in a motor cycle accident in New Jersey. He was a patient in the Warren County Hospital Phillipsburg, N.J.

All 25 men recently sent to Wilkes-Barre for physical examinations by the local draft board passed their examinations and were to leave within 30 days for active duty.

How many remember in 1921 when the State Highway Department announced it would build a road between Sciota and Wind Gap?

The Allen-Scott Report

Anti-Hoffa Strategy

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington — Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy is trying a new strategy to topple James R. Hoffa from his position as head of the 1,600,000 member Teamsters Union.

He has launched a nationwide investigation into the financial affairs of a score of Hoffa's associates in the Teamsters organization, the underworld, and business.

Tough prosecution of these people, who the attorney general believes have shielded some Teamster figures in the past, is expected to greatly undercut invincibility and power within the labor organization.

To handle the sweeping investigation, Kennedy has set up a special 20-man unit by Assistant Anthony Herbert J. Miller, head of the Justice Department's Criminal Division.

Miller is being assisted by Walter Sheridan, former investigator from Senator McClellan's Labor Rackets committee, and John Cassidy, formerly a lawyer with the court-appointed Teamsters monitors.

The Miller-Sheridan-Cassidy

team is well acquainted with all of the financial operations and dealings of Hoffa and his associates from coast to coast.

For example, Cassidy, after nearly three years with the court-appointed monitors, has on the tip of his tongue the names and connections of every underworld figure within the Teamsters, and their business interests.

Attorney General Kennedy decided to try a new approach to unseat Hoffa after a thorough review of the Justice Department's files showed that there had never been a fully co-ordinated nationwide investigation of Hoffa and his associates.

Under the Eisenhower administration, government lawyers had made a series of separate investigations and prosecutions, but no over-all probe had ever been ordered despite many official comments that such an investigation was underway.

Making Progress — Already

there are positive signs that Kennedy's new strategy is working.

Several witnesses, summoned before grand juries this month, have asked for and received immunity from federal prosecution in exchange for a promise of full co-operation.

This surprising but not altogether unexpected development has greatly boosted the optimismism of Justice Department crime busters and they are now forecasting a series of indictments by the end of September.

However, unless new evidence is turned up, it is unlikely that in the next few months there will be any new effort by Kennedy to move directly against Hoffa.

The Teamsters president is still under indictment in connection with a land transaction in Florida, but it is not likely that the Justice Department will push for trial of that fraud case.

Kennedy aides point out that indictment was returned in great haste in the final days of the Eisenhower administration and is considered to have some basic weaknesses.

Although young Kennedy plans to point his legal guns at Hoffa's associates in the weeks ahead,

the attorney general's main long-range target is still the Teamster's czar. He has vowed to aches to that he will topple Hoffa before leaving office.

Coming Events — Federal

Judge J. Cullen Ganey, who

Liquid Fuel Tax Forms Mailed To State Farmers

THE BOARD of Finance and Revenue in Harrisburg yesterday mailed almost 47,000 applications for reimbursement of liquid fuel tax to the farmers of Pennsylvania.

The forms cover the fiscal year July 1, 1960 to June 30, this year, and they involve different rates of tax, according to a letter sent by Mrs. Grace M. Sloan, state treasurer, to Rep. Van D. Yetter Jr., D., Monroe.

For the period beginning last July 1 and ending March 31,

Sanitation Division's Requirements

THE DIVISION of Sanitation of the Pennsylvania Department of Health reported yesterday it requires the submission of plans and specifications for new construction, additions, or alterations of all establishments or buildings which are public, semi-public, or commercial in nature, and where the public receives a service which has a public health significance.

Examples of such places would be restaurants, taverns, schools, motels, mobilehome parks, camps or institutions, also any business place where sewage systems are to be of the septic tank-subsurface disposal type and also those places which are going to use other than public water supplies.

The plans to be submitted for approval would include all food service facilities and should show anticipated design and construction or changes in kitchen, dishwashing areas, storage area, toilet facilities, dining hall, or any phase of the food service facility.

Reviewed By Staff

Plans are reviewed by a trained staff and are approved when all requirements are met. The plan review program involves only those areas of our region where a direct service is being rendered by the sanitations employed by the Pennsylvania Department of Health.

Any additional information on the services of the sanitation staff in the eight-county area of Region I which comprises Columbia, Lackawanna, Luzerne, Monroe, Pike, Susquehanna, Wayne, and Wyoming counties can be secured by contacting George M. Livingston, Regional Sanitarian, Pennsylvania Department of Health, 71 N. Franklin St., Wilkes-Barre.

In order to facilitate the submission of plans, the Division of Sanitation issued a guide to architects and engineers this past year, and copies of the guide may be secured at the Regional Office of the Pennsylvania Department of Health in Wilkes-Barre.

"Something New Every Day"

Just Between Us —
— By Bobby Westbrook

No matter what happens you can't please everybody. Wonderful weather, says one enthusiastically; too cold for swimming, mourns another. It was good weather for working, doing errands, and getting on with everyday routine, but certainly not hot enough to drive city folks to the refuge of the Foggins.

Maybe that explains why the streets downtown seemed so comfortably uncongested for a change. Along the side streets, little girls were playing house in their mother's high heels and boys were busy with Indian warfare in the back yards.

Older people were taking after-supper strolls to check on the new construction — and finding to their delight that it is now possible to walk over the Seventh St. bridge.

But if it was a placid day outside, it was exciting writing the social news. Ruth Kistler's trip sounds like a dream come true with the finest accommodations all over Europe, their own bus and driver, and a special fund to celebrate birthdays enroute. By coincidence they'll be in Amsterdam for two days while Nan's there. Be funny if they met on the launch to Volendam.

I find myself reading the stories of the tennis matches at Wimbleton — not to see who won but how the weather was so I can judge whether Nan will need those boots. I don't know how to check the weather for Edinborough this weekend.

Wonder if the Wakefields will be checking the weather in Maine where Sandy has what seems like a very special job, tutoring in French and minoring in small crafts.

Even without the cooperation of the weather, the news somehow has a summertime smell.

'Yum-Yum Tree' Pro All The Way

By GLORIA S. RANDOLPH
MOUNTAINHOME — "Under the Yum-Yum Tree," the third presentation of the Pocono Playhouse's 1961 season opened Monday night. It is an active vehicle for an actor who is fond of calisthenics. Darren McGavin is obviously just such an actor and under his direction the supporting players are really put through their paces.

This farce-comedy relies more on action than on writing for laughs. Although some of the comedy lines are delivered with a surprisingly light touch, there is certainly nothing subtle about the play.

The author, Lawrence Roman, has invented a character who is a kind of "representative of debauchery."

"Hogan" is the owner of an apartment building whose real occupation is becoming romantically involved with his tenants. McGavin plays "Hogan" with a deliberate swagger which at times becomes exaggerated into a writhing, suggestive motion which seemed to be somewhat overdone.

The other characters are well played but the production is staged so actively that each character seems constantly on the verge of exhaustion. There are no hesitations at any time and occasionally the running, jumping, twisting and bouncing becomes quite overbearing.

Delightfully Fresh

Barbara Maites is delightfully fresh and appealing as "Rob in Austin," a young science student who tries to dissect her love life. The experiment she proposes to her fiance involves "sheiving" biological desires in an attempt to find out how much intellectual companionship they can offer one another.

Fred Beir plays the tormented "Dave Manning," "Robin's" victim, in a thoroughly likeable manner. Throughout the play "Dave" is the most believable character and Beir's tortured portrayal is one of genuine humor, if at times a bit too athletic.

Mrs. McGavin

Melanie York (Mrs. Darren McGavin) plays "Irene Wilson," a sophisticate who is "Robin's" best friend and confidante.

"Irene" has succumbed to "Hogan's" charms. She finds herself in the difficult position of being "Robin's" mentor and possible rival. Miss York plays "Irene" with a worldly-wise air which is fine except for a few too many sweeping gestures.

The production values are up to the Pocono Playhouse's usual standard of excellence. The set is well lighted, well designed and handsomely decorated. The production itself could not be called anything but thoroughly professional. Monday's audience gave it up roarous approval and I enjoyed it immensely even though I found it a bit too strenuous.

Ex-Chess King Still Winning

ACTION in the Stroudsburg Chess Club continues throughout the summer months with veterans battling relative newcomers.

In the latest action over the weekend, former champion Harold N. James continued his winning ways. He beat old-time rival Earl Weiss and then dropped William P. Deering in two games.

In other contests, Weiss turned back Louis Mondelle twice. Mondelle followed by clipping Deering in an ensuing match.

The House Of The Week

Retirement House Offers Dignity And Ease

By Jules Loh

DESIGNING a home to satisfy every couple approaching retirement is no easy assignment. Not everyone has the same plans for their golden years, and their needs vary considerably.

Architect Samuel Paul has met the task splendidly, however, in this versatile ranch which combines convenience with attractiveness and comfort.

"Basically," said Paul, "retirement should be a time of dignity and ease, so I've made that the hallmark of this home. I've also tried to answer the varied needs of retired couples with a design which can be altered a number of different ways."

Two key features give House of the Week design B-72 its fine versatility.

One is an Eleven ft. Eight inches by Nine ft. studio room which could serve as a second bedroom or spare room for overnight guests. The other is an expansion plan which would add another full bedroom and bath to the basic plan if desired.

The house offers 1,125 square feet of living area, including a screened porch, plus a 250 square foot single garage. The expansion would add an additional 294 square feet.

Having solved the problem of size, Paul turned to the daily living needs of a retired couple. Everything in the house is designed to make things easy for them.

The plan is single level (eliminating stair climbing), has wide floors throughout, grab bars in the large bathroom, and electrical outlets placed at least Eighteen ft. above the floor.

Dimensions of the trim house are Thirty-Six ft. Eight inches by Twenty-Six ft. Two inches including the screened porch, which extends Nine ft. off the rear, and the Twelve ft. wide garage. The expansion would add another Fourteen ft. to the width of the house.

Additional Details

The eight ft. six inches by eight ft. kitchen and eight ft. six inches by eight ft. six inches dining area have been combined for maximum mealtime convenience and open

DO IT WITH COLOR
Before you select a paint color for the exterior of your home, remember that there are all sorts of tricks you can do with color to change the apparent size and shape of the building. If your house is too small, for example, it will look larger painted white or a light color. If the chimney is too large or too small, paint it the same color as the house, not a contrasting color that calls attention to it.

CONCRETE FACTS
A paint resistant to alkali must be used when painting concrete and other surfaces containing cement. Among those recommended are latex paints, portland cement paints, rubber-based solvent paints, masonry paints and colorless silicone water repellants. Follow label instructions carefully for satisfactory results.

Avoid painting in the direct rays of the sun, because sunheat may cause the paint to dry improperly with resulting cracks, blisters or other faults. QUESTION: I need some quarter-inch plywood for a project I am working on. I have a piece of eighth-inch plywood and a piece of eighth-inch hardboard left over from a previous job. Can these two materials be glued together successfully to give me the quarter-inch thickness I need?

ANSWER: Yes, plywood and hardboard can be glued together as though you were gluing two pieces of hardboard. If the material is to be used outdoors or otherwise will be exposed to the weather, be sure to use waterproof glue.

QUESTION: We are planning on finishing our expansion with some kind of wood paneling. Can you tell us how far apart the studs should be and whether it is necessary to apply furring strips to the studs before putting up the paneling.

ANSWER: Before putting up the framing, you must decide whether the wood paneling will be installed vertically or horizontally. The usual method is to place the panels vertically. In that event, the studs can be 24 inches apart on center; that is, 24 inches from the center of one stud to the center of the next. But you then must nail horizontal furring strips to the studs—with the panels attached to the furring strips. If you decide to place the panels horizontally, then furring strips are not necessary, but the studs will have to be closer together, 16 inches apart on center. How should you decide whether to place the panels vertically or horizontally? First, it's a matter of personal taste. Try to see at least one example of each type of installation. And secondly, remember this general rule: vertical panels tend to make a ceiling appear higher; horizontal panels tend to make a room appear larger but the ceiling lower.

Dear Abby

She Wants A Chance

BABIED GIRL

Dear Abby: Since my birth I have gone to the doctor who delivered me. He is a pediatrician, and a wonderful one. My complaint is that I am now 13 years old, and I think I should stop going to a pediatrician.

Dear Abby: Believe it or not, many girls (by their own choice) have continued going to their pediatricians until they've married. But if you prefer a "regular doctor," enlist the help of your pediatrician. He may be able to persuade your mother to "graduate you" and recommend a physician for adults.

Dear Abby: I am very much confused. I read in a book somewhere that you can get pregnant from kissing. Is this true?

Drivers kill and cripple more children than any disease!

Think of careless driving as a disease...a terrible one. Completely relentless in its choice of victims. For not only do strangers kill other people's children, but parents may kill their own! What can we do to prevent these tragedies? We can dig in our heels and say, "Enough!" We can write our local enforcement officials and tell them:

"I Support Strict Law Enforcement!"

When police officers and judges know they have the support of their community, they can really crack down hard on the speeders and the light passers. They can do a more effective job of protecting your children. In community after community, the records prove it: Where traffic laws are strictly enforced and obeyed, deaths go down!

Yews 'Evergreens' Queen

By GEORGE ABRAHAM
JAPANESE YEWS: Yews are regarded as the queen of all evergreens, valued for their deep green beauty and for their trouble-free performance. In recent years Yews have been troubled by the taxus weevil or black vine weevil, the same villain which eats the roots of strawberry plants, and causes serious damage to hemlock, rhododendron and azaleas, as well as certain perennials.

If you're the owner of Yews take a look at your plants and see if they show any tell-tale signs of weevil injury: slow growth, pale, off-color foliage, lack of new growth. Also take a look at the interior needles to see if the adult weevil has been feeding.

Injured foliage has small notches, whereas normal needles have no feeding injury. Also, try digging the soil in the immediate root area to see if you can find white legless grubs 1/4" in length.

Control — Spray or dust the foliage and ground in early July, being certain to cover the branches heavily next to the ground. Drenching the soil area from late June to early July is probably the most effective time to check the pest.

Materials to use include 25% diazinon wettable powder, 2 tablespoons to a gallon of water, or 40% chlordane, 5 tablespoons to a gallon.

Many readers tell us that mealybugs and scales have been troublesome on their yews. Spraying with 25% malathion, 4 tablespoons to a gallon of water will check these pests, and red spider as well.

Incidentally, if your yews have needles which turn yellow and are shedding from the inside only, this is nothing to worry about.

All evergreens must shed their needles, and the process starts on the inside. Take a peak at your arborvitae and Junipers. If they have an off-color, chances are spider mites (invisible) are sucking the juices from the leaves. Malathion, 25% powder, 4 lbs. to a gallon of water kills mites.

HOW TO MAKE A ROSE JAR — The old-fashioned rose jar is a thing of beauty. It will fill a room with the delicate scent and delightful aroma of dried, spiced rose petals.

Since this year's crop of roses has been unusually heavy, why not make a rose jar or Potpourri. All you do is gather the petals in early morning, spread them on a table in the shade until the dew has left. Then arrange in half-inch layers in a covered jar or dish, sprinkling each layer with ordinary table salt. Add petals day by day until they measure about 2 quarts when pressed solid. Stir thoroughly every morning, and 10 days after the last addition has been made, mix together in a separate dish 1/4 ounce each of ground mace, cloves and allspice; 1/2 oz. of ground cinnamon, 2 ounces of powdered orange root and 1/4 lb. of dried lavender flowers.

For further information, send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope and ask for my free bulletin, HOW TO MAKE A ROSE JAR.

GREEN THUMB NOTE — Friends, when writing to me for information or bulletins, please be sure to send me a correct, self-addressed, stamped envelope. I have stacks of letters which cannot be answered due to improper addressing.

Here are a few rules to follow: Never send loose stamps or clippings. Never send me a postal card request as we cannot honor it. Be sure to write your full name and full address. Never say "city" or "local" for your city, because the Post Office doesn't know which city you mean.

If you request more than one cultural bulletin, please include an extra stamp to carry it through the mails. Be sure to allow at least two weeks or even more for an answer.

ANTS IN LAWNS — We're receiving many letters from homeowners asking us what to do about ants in lawns. Ants kill trees or shrubs by tunneling around the roots, causing air to dry up the plants.

Ant hills can be handled by punching holes in them and dusting some chlordane or diazinon into the pockets. Also scatter some of the chemicals over the entire area covered by the pests. Ants along the foundation of homes can be licked by scattering either chlordane or diazinon at the base. When ants walk over these materials, they're doomed.

Tiny ants often invade homes, looking for something sweet. One way to handle them is to use a sponge with sugar water, over night. The ants will fill the sponge and in early morning you simply drop the ant-filled sponge into boiling water. This has helped me clean up the ant problem in our own kitchen.

NOT ALL INSECTS BUG YOU! — Did you know there are more good insects than bad took over.

Question Box

QUESTION OF the Week — D. R. of Stroudsburg: "Please tell me if it is necessary to remove the old flower heads of lilacs. My neighbor never touches his and his bushes are full of blossoms every year. I cut mine off and don't get half the blooms he does."

This is a question that's been kicked around for some time. Ordinarily, seed production is a drain on the plant, and for that reason cutting off the old seed heads should throw more food into the buds for a greater show.

During periods of heavy rains, you should count on mowing frequently to give your lawn a neater appearance, and to avoid lopping off too much grass at once.

Turf men tell you that no more than 1/4 of the growth should be removed at one cutting. When grass has been allowed to grow long due to rains or while you're vacationing, rather than cut it back all at once, you might remove 1/4 of the growth and wait 2 or 3 days and cut off another third. When you cut off a lot at once, the grass has a grayish cast.

If you do want to remove the seed heads, be careful where you cut or you'll remove next year's crop of flowers. The flower stem originates from the end of the branch and next year's flower buds are all ready to start along the sides of the branch.

If you clip too far down the stem you remove these bud growths and that's why you have fewer flowers.

A. S. of E. Stroudsburg: "I wish you'd tell me how close we can mow our lawn. We've had a lot of growth due to rains and each time we mow it the lawn has a grayish cast. What makes this?"

During periods of heavy rains, you should count on mowing frequently to give your lawn a neater appearance, and to avoid lopping off too much grass at once.

Turf men tell you that no more than 1/4 of the growth should be removed at one cutting. When grass has been allowed to grow long due to rains or while you're vacationing, rather than cut it back all at once, you might remove 1/4 of the growth and wait 2 or 3 days and cut off another third. When you cut off a lot at once, the grass has a grayish cast.

Another reason for the grayish cast is dull blades, especially with a rotary type mower. These blades beat the grass tops, and the resulting "bruise" gives the lawn a light gray color instead of a nice green sheen.

Bluegrass lawns are best cut about 1" high during the summer. Close shaving will invite crabgrass, and will make the turf more susceptible to insects, drought, diseases and weeds alike.

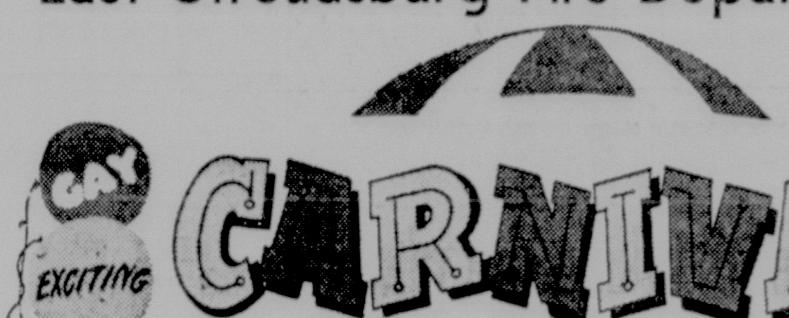

Incidentally, if you mow a 72-foot, 36,000-pound, four-stage Scout rocket, a research vehicle that already has been used in two ballistic flights and two orbital efforts.

An announcement by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said Sunday the primary purpose of the fifth Scout shoot is to give scientists another opportunity to study the rocket's performance and its guidance control system.

Barrett YMCA Program

By Pat Williams

MOUNTAINHOME — "HELP" in block capitals across Robert Wilson's notes characterized the local situation this week.

At the emergency Barrett YMCA board meeting, the members found themselves with their backs to the wall and their hands virtually tied.

Since the Barrett Welfare Fund

folded, there will be no playground program this summer, and the members of the Barrett Branch YMCA feel a program is of great necessity in the area.

Lack of adequate facilities and a lack of personnel make the problem one which needs help, the YMCA board feels.

As an emergency measure, the YMCA has begun a program for five weeks, beginning July 10 and running through August 11. The camp, built along the "stay at home" camp of previous years will be under the supervision of Robert Wilson and Mrs. Wilson and a large vacancy is open for someone qualified to handle the grade groups second through sixth.

Cost for the program will be $10 for two weeks and includes arts, crafts and insurance. The children will meet at the YMCA at 9:30 a.m. every morning from Monday through Friday with their lunches and remain at the "camp" until 3:30 p.m.

Parents interested in sending their children to this camp are asked to register with Robert Wilson no later than Thursday, July 6.

Counselors are needed to make the program a success. Interested teens may contact the YMCA, LY 5-2730 for information.

BETWEEN NOISE AND

FERTILITY?

There is no connection between noise and fertility. The noise level in a room does not affect the fertility of a woman. However, if a woman is exposed to high levels of noise for long periods of time, it can affect her ability to conceive. This is because noise can interfere with the production of eggs in the ovaries and can also affect the sperm count and motility in men.
